It's important for your association management software to handle complex membership data and relationships. Individual

Organizational

An enterprise membership option that includes industry partnerships and accredited institutions.

Membership cycle

To further simplify your association's membership process, you'll want to consider membership renewal dates and length of membership. There are two options for renewal:

Anniversary renewal Memberships restart on an anniversary basis, or the first day of the month the member joined your association.

Annual renewal

Memberships renew on an annual basis, or January 1.

TECH TIP:

Remind your members to renew by automating membership renewal emails — use Nimble Create to design personalized email templates and drive member retention.

TECH TIP:

Pick Nimble AMS to manage your association's multi-year memberships. Nimble AMS offers superior solutions to streamline your billing process like Express Payments.

One year membership

Once individuals pay the association dues, they can enjoy the membership benefits for 12 months.

Annual membership

Some associations allow individuals to enroll in multi-year memberships when they pay dues in advance.

Subscription membership

Subscription membership allows individuals to pay monthly dues to receive member benefits. Members must opt out of their membership, or they'll stay enrolled in the program.

Membership payment options

Associations offer a variety of options when it comes to paying for membership. Giving members viable choices is more likely to increase your membership retention numbers.

Pay in installments Allow members to pay for their memberships in predetermined frequencies (ex. monthly or quarterly).

Auto-renewal

Whether your membership is individual, organizational, or hybrid, members will auto-renew on a pre-determined date.

Recurring payments

This option works similarly to paying in installments, except there's no fixed end date. In this model, there's flexibility to continue membership without lapsing.

TECH TIP:

Choose Nimble AMS to launch your association's auto-renewal program and offer flexible membership payment options.
